The Millennium Assembly and the Millennium Summit

"The Millennium Assembly offers a timely opportunity for the world's leaders to look beyond their pressing daily concerns and consider what kind of United Nations they can envision and will support in the new century."

United Nations Secretary-General Kofi Annan

Six billion human beings. Rapid globalization. Intractable conflicts. Genocide. Ethnic cleansing. Promoting development. Combating poverty and AIDS. Climate change. As humanity reflects on the challenges we face at this millennium milestone, it is a chance also to reflect on the only global organization to which we can turn: the United Nations.

To consider how to strengthen the role of the world body in meeting the challenges of the twenty-first century, the UN General Assembly decided to designate its 56th session, starting on 5 September 2000, as the Millennium Assembly of the United Nations and to hold a Millennium Summit.

Likely to be the largest-ever gathering of Heads of State or Government, the Summit will be a historic occasion for the 188 Member States of the United Nations. It will be held from 6 to 8 September 2000 at the Headquarters of the United Nations in New York. According to Secretary-General Kofi Annan, it is his hope that the Millennium Summit should provide an opportunity for a "moral recommitment" to the principles of the UN Charter and for renewed international cooperation.

55/2. United Nations Millennium Declaration

The General Assembly

Adopts the following Declaration:

United Nations Millennium Declaration

I. Values and principles

1. We, heads of State and Government, have gathered at United Nations Headquarters in New York from 6 to 8 September 2000, at the dawn of a new millennium, to reaffirm our faith in the Organization and its Charter as indispensable foundations of a more peaceful, prosperous and just world.
2. We recognize that, in addition to our separate responsibilities to our individual societies, we have a collective responsibility to uphold the principles of human dignity, equality and equity at the global level. As leaders we have a duty therefore to all the world's people, especially the most vulnerable and, in particular, the children of the world, to whom the future belongs.
3. We reaffirm our commitment to the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations, which have proved timeless and universal. Indeed, their relevance and capacity to inspire have increased, as nations and peoples have become increasingly interconnected and interdependent.
4. We are determined to establish a just and lasting peace all over the world in accordance with the purposes and principles of the Charter. We rededicate ourselves to support all efforts to uphold the sovereign equality of all States, respect for their territorial integrity and political independence, resolution of disputes by peaceful means and in conformity with the principles of justice and international law, the right to self-determination of peoples which remain under colonial domination and foreign occupation, non-interference in the internal affairs of States, respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms, respect for the equal rights of all without distinction as to race, sex, language or religion and international cooperation to solve international problems of an economic, social, cultural or humanitarian nature.

MDGs Operationalizing the Declaration

“... In order to translate these shared values into actions, we have identified key objectives to which we assign special significance...”

Millennium Development Goals

The screenshot shows the homepage of the WE CAN END POVERTY 2015 website. At the top, there are navigation links in Arabic, Chinese, English, French, and Russian. The main header features the United Nations logo and the slogan "WE CAN END POVERTY 2015" with "MILLENNIUM DEVELOPMENT GOALS" below it. A navigation bar includes links for "Background", "Reports", "Statistics", "Calendar", "Statements", and "Media R". A sidebar on the left lists various UN agencies: Home, UN media contacts, UN Partners on MDGs, UNDP (United Nations Development Programme), Millennium Campaign, UNDESA (UN Department of Economic & Social Affairs), World Bank, UNICEF (UN Children's Fund), UNEP (UN Environment Programme), UNFPA (UN Population Fund), WHO (World Health Organization), IMF (International Monetary Fund), UN-HABITAT (UN Human Settlements Programme), FAO (Food & Agriculture Organization), IFAD (International Fund for Agricultural Development), ILO (International Labour Organization), and ITU (International Telecommunication Union). The main content area features a prominent announcement for the "Summit on the Millennium Development Goals 20-22 September 2010". The text states that the UN Summit on the Millennium Development Goals concluded the adoption of a global action plan to achieve the eight anti-poverty goals by their 2015 target date and the announcement of major new commitments for women's and children's health and other initiatives against poverty, hunger, and disease. Below this is a "WARNING" section with a yellow background, stating: "A hoax e-mail is circulating, inviting participants to a Millennium Development Goals Summit in January 2011 in London. There is no such UN summit upcoming; this e-mail is a scam." At the bottom, there is a section titled "What's Going On?" with a sub-heading "Commission to track results for women's and children's health". This section includes a small image of a woman and a child and text stating: "The United Nations is establishing a high-level commission charged with developing an accountability framework that will link resources committed to women's and children's health with the results they are intended to achieve. 'Strengthening accountability critical if we are to save the lives of more women and children,' said UN Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon."

The 8 Goals

- 1) Eradicate Extreme Hunger
- 2) Achieve Universal Primary Education
- 3) End Gender Inequality
- 4) Reduce by 2/3 the Mortality Rate for Children under Five
- 5) Reduce Maternal Mortality
- 6) Fight HIV/AIDS and Malaria
- 7) Combine Sustainable Development Principles into Country Policies
- 8) Forge a Global Partnership for Development.

Millennium Development Goals

The Millennium Development Goals (MDGs)

consist of:

- 8 goals
- 21 targets
- to be achieved by 2015

Today's Homework ...

Which of the MDGs (where applicable) is your NGO contributing to?

Find and review the MDG Summit outcome document, read it. What are your thoughts about this document in light of what you now know about the MDGs? (<http://www.un.org/en/mdg/summit2010/>)

Go to the NGO responses to the MDG Summit and read some of their responses (don't read this first...).
What did you discover? (bit.ly/hzirIV)
